Exploring the Intersection of AI, Data and the Future of Work – A Thoughtful Dialogue with Alumni UK

IRIIC May 31, 2025 On 31 May 2025, the British Council’s Alumni UK initiative organized an engaging webinar titled “AI, Data and the Future of Work” that brought together forward-thinking professionals, researchers, and policymakers to discuss the evolving landscape of work driven by artificial intelligence and data-driven innovation. The webinar, featuring global experts and dynamic discussions, served as a platform to explore how AI and data are redefining industries, reshaping job roles, and transforming the way we work. Prof. Dr. Khondaker Abdullah Al-Mamun, Director of the Institute of Research, Innovation, Incubation and Commercialization (IRIIC) at United International University (UIU), participated in this prestigious forum, sharing his insights on the opportunities and challenges of integrating AI and data analytics into the future workforce. The event emphasized how emerging technologies are opening up new possibilities for job creation, upskilling, and equitable access to work. From healthcare and education to manufacturing and finance, panelists discussed how AI-powered tools are enabling more personalized services and smarter decision-making processes. Prof. Mamun’s presence and contributions highlighted Bangladesh’s growing focus on leveraging AI for development, with an emphasis on responsible innovation and inclusivity. As a thought leader in digital health and innovation ecosystems, Prof. Mamun spoke about the critical role of data governance, ethical frameworks, and lifelong learning strategies in ensuring that AI becomes a catalyst for positive social change. The Alumni UK webinar attracted a diverse audience, including young professionals, entrepreneurs, researchers, and policymakers from across South Asia and beyond. The event also underscored the importance of international collaboration in harnessing AI’s potential while addressing challenges such as workforce adaptation, data privacy, and ethical considerations. With such gatherings of knowledge and experience, the British Council’s Alumni UK program continues to strengthen global networks, fostering impactful dialogues to build a smarter, more sustainable future of work.
